

NO!

It is not claimed that Foley's Honey and Tar will cure Consumption or Asthma in advanced stages; it holds out no such false hopes, but does truthfully claim to always give comfort and relief in the very worst cases, and in the early stages effect a cure.

What a prominent citizen says:

Messrs. FOLEY & Co.,
Gentlemen—As a result of continued exposure I contracted a terrible cold which grew worse rapidly until my physician said I had all the symptoms of hasty consumption. All the physicians' remedies were valueless, as were several proprietary preparations, until a friend recommended Foley's Honey and Tar, and while I had lost faith in patent preparations, yet I took her advice and began taking it. In a few days I began to improve, at first rather slowly, but before the first bottle was gone I was much relieved. The second bottle completely effected a cure for which I am truly grateful, and take pleasure in recommending it as the best thing for coughs, colds or lung trouble that I have ever known.

Official Paper of the City of Wa-Keeney.

Saturday, October 23, 1899.

The Populist party of Kansas is split wide open on the question of expansion. Some of the leaders are for it and some are agin it, and there is sure to be a monkey and parrot time in the next state convention. G. C. Clemons, the brightest of them all, among other good things says: "As for expansion, I am in favor of it—that is, what is left of it. It looks to me now as though the job had already been done so far as the Philippines are concerned. When we start out to expand again, no matter what country we propose to gobble up, I will be on the side of expansionists. It is our destiny to expand until the barbarous countries of the world are taken in and civilized. The party which opposes the policy of the administration in suppressing the rebellion and opposes the acquisition of the Philippines is just as certain to be defeated as night follows day." Ex-Senator Peffer is another who is on the side of America. He says: "We have a right to be in the Philippines, a right to suppress the insurrection, and we will do it. There is no such thing as international law—the conqueror has the right to govern and control a conquered country. * * * McKinley is simply doing his duty. I say, go right on upholding the country. Spread our commerce and plant our flag wherever we go." Congressman E. E. Ridgeley spoke at the reunion in Topeka and said: "My convictions are ever for expansion. The Philippines have already been taken in by the United States by the signing of the peace treaty and now the work to do is that of civilizing and Christianizing that country." Col. H. C. Lindsay of the 22nd Kansas regiment, one of the strongest fusionists in the state, is disgusted over the attempt of the Breidenthal faction to line up the party against the war and expansion. He says: "This country may have made a mistake at the outset in the Philippines, but there is only one thing for a loyal American to do now, and that is to stand by the government. The 'haul down of the flag' brigade should go over there and enlist with the rebels. There is where they belong. As an American citizen I shall stand by the war policy of the administration until the rebellion is crushed, and, if necessary, will go over there and shoulder a musket myself." John Madden of Emporia, the Populist leader of the Fourth district, says it is inconceivable why the Populists of Kansas should oppose the war and expansion. He says: "The party is made up of loyal Kansans and when the leaders attempt to lead the masses into declaring their sympathy for rebels defying the authority of the government, they will find out that but few will follow them." J. M. Dunsmore, the speaker of the ramp house of '93, says that any man who advocates hauling down the flag before a Kansas audience should be hooted down. Grant Harrington of the Hiawatha Democrat, not only uses his lips but his pen also in his advocacy of the war and expansion. Harrington is a member of the Populist State committee and got out all the campaign literature last year.—Ex.

On the 10th of December, 1897, Rev. S. A. Donahoe, pastor M. E. Church, South, Pt. Pleasant, W. Va., contracted a severe cold which was attended from the beginning by violent coughing. He says: "After resorting to a number of so-called 'specifics,' usually kept in a house, to no purpose, I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which acted like a charm. I most cheerfully recommend it to the public." For sale by Jones & Gibson.

Wants the Money.

J. Sterling Morton, a member of Cleveland's cabinet, who now lives in Nebraska, has exposed some of Bryan's relations to politics. It seems that in 1889, Bryan was a young lawyer in Nebraska, out of a job, and sought Morton's aid to get it. He wrote to Morton these words:

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 11, 1889.
Hon. J. Sterling Morton,
Nebraska City, Neb.:
Dear Friend:—I am grateful to you for your endorsement. Had I hesitated to write you because I dislike soliciting aid, I assure you that it is the money that is in the office and not the honor that attracts me. With regards, I am

Yours Very Truly,
W. J. BRYAN.
And so this is the man a part of the Democracy idolizes, who wants the "money in the office" rather than the honor.—Ex.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, is narrated by John Oliver of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continual in the back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50c., guaranteed, at Jones & Gibson's drug store.

Cattle may go down—it would hardly be expected that they will always be up. But the Kansas cow that raises a calf each year, that gives milk for the family and for calves and pigs, that makes butter for the table and the market, that feeds herself on the native grass and the cheaply raised kafir corn, cane and alfalfa, will always be good property, says the Douglas Tribune. She is a money maker and debt payer for her owner whether beef cattle be high or low. She does her duty nobly while she lives, and when her mission is filled she goes peacefully to her rest in the prime roast beef can, and her owner takes her price to purchase her successor.—Mail and Breeze.

"I wish to express my thanks to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, for having put on the market such a wonderful medicine," says W. W. Massingill, of Beaumont, Texas. There are many thousands of mothers whose children have been saved from attacks of dysentery and cholera infantum who must also feel thankful. It is for sale by Jones & Gibson.

The reunion of the 21st Kansas in this city this week demonstrated that the young soldiers as well as the old are for expansion; that they are with McKinley and favor pressing the war in the Philippines.—Kingman Courier.

"If you scour the world you will never find a remedy equal to One Minute Cough Cure," says Editor Fackler, of the Micanopy, Fla., "Hustler." It cured his family of La-Grippe and saves thousands from pneumonia, bronchitis, croup and all throat and lung troubles. Jones & Gibson, druggists.

The meanest man we ever saw, lives in this county. He bought a wedding suit, and two months after he was married took it back saying it didn't fit; was too large for him and refused to pay the balance due on it.—Goodland News.

Nature can only feed the flame of life with food eaten which is digested. HERBINE will invigorate a weak stomach, and so improve digestion as to insure the natural bloom of health. Price 50 cts. Jones & Gibson.

Everything this year has conspired to keep tramps out of Kansas. During the summer they did not dare to enter the state for fear of being drafted into the harvest field, and now the corn crop is about ready for husking.—Minneapolis Messenger.

Thousands of the most stubborn and distressing cases of piles had been cured by TABLET'S BUCKEYE PILE OINTMENT. It never fails to cure. Price, 50 cts. in bottles, tubes, 75 cts. Jones & Gibson.

Some say there is nothing in Christian science, yet how will they explain this: An Atchison man was bald many years until he became a convert. Now he has a new crop of hair coming on and whereas the hair lost was red the new Christian science crop is a beautiful black.—Atchison Globe.

Senator Harris spent four years of his life trying to pull down the flag of the United States, and he got entirely over his taste for the job. He now advises his democratic and populist constituents that in demanding that the flag be hauled down in the Philippines they are making the mistake of their lives.—Iola Register.

The "Plow Boy Preacher," Rev. J. Kirkman, Belle River, Ill., says: "After suffering from bronchial or lung trouble for ten years, I was cured by One Minute Cough Cure. It is all that is claimed for it and more." It cures coughs, colds, grippé and all throat and lung troubles. Jones & Gibson, druggists.

A man in this county advertised for a wife. A woman came, but did not like his looks. She went to work in another family where there was a widower, and soon they were to be married. He gave his devoted (as he thought) fiancée $100 to buy a wardrobe. She came to town and, unlike the cat, never came back. Now both men have found where she has some property and propose beginning breach of promise suits and taking this property. The question for the courts will be which was damaged, and how much if any.—Lawrence World.

WHITE'S CREAM VERMIFUGE is a highly valuable preparation, capable, from the promptitude of its action, of clearing the system in a few hours of every worm. Price 25 cts. Jones & Gibson.

Mr. Bryan—and a good many other people—insist that the gold dollar is a dishonest dollar because it will buy twice as much now as it would a few years ago. Applying the same test there is a lot of land around Iola that is mighty dishonest—it will buy five times as much as it would three years ago! And what is more, this land is getting more dishonest, for its purchasing power is increasing. Down with this rascally land!—Iola Register.

Millions of dollars, is the value placed by Mrs. Mary Bird, Harrisburg, Pa., on the life of her child, which was saved from croup by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. It cures all coughs, colds and throat and lung troubles. Jones & Gibson, druggists.

Little Carl Kness, who was at the City Hotel last week with his parents of Wichita, Kansas, is about the most remarkable youngster of his age we have ever seen, and his feats of strength created quite a sensation. He is only six months old now, a bright, cheerful boy, always wears a smile, weighs only 23 pounds and is a wonderful athlete. He holds with ease, at arm's length three pounds, stands on one foot in his papa's hand at arm's length, has been standing up beside chairs for three months, turns flip-flops on the bed for hours, holds up with his feet 50 pounds while lying on his back, and many other things which appear impossible for a child only six months old. He is the pride of his mamma and papa, who weigh respectively 130 and 208.—Alton Empire.

A FIRST EXPERIENCE.

Evelyn Carpenter was a girl of decided opinions. She was also possessed of a will of her own, and a very determined way of enforcing it. A rather tall, handsome girl, with dark, pensive eyes, and smooth, thoughtful brow, in rather comical contrast with the proud bearing and independent appearance of her owner. She wended her way homeward with the quick, irregular step of one who chafes inwardly at the world, and knows none on whom to lay the blame. She sought a mission, a new sphere of action for the benefit of her fellow creatures.

Suddenly, before she had sufficiently awakened from her reverie to notice whence it came, a flood of sweet song seemed to soothe her ruffled feelings. A lark, imprisoned in a narrow cage, poured forth to the heedless world outside its soul of melody through hard bars of wire.

The sense of relief which had stolen over the girl gave place to one of anger, combined with some odd satisfaction. Here at last was an opportunity to do good, even if it were obtaining the freedom of one poor, hopeless lark. And who more suited to the task than she, the president, self-consecrated only three days since, of the N— Society for the Promotion of Christian Charity Toward Animals? The song that had soothed her unanxious now made her soul burn within her. Crossing the road with decided step, she entered a little shop, over the door of which the bird sang on. It was a cobbler's workshop, she found, scattered as such places are with implements of the trade, and pervaded with the pleasant smell of leather. A little, bent old man, with large spectacles on his wrinkled nose, and deft lean fingers that moved nimbly over the rough leather, put aside his work and shuffled forward to the counter. He moved slowly and with difficulty, for his old limbs were getting past their work. Pleasantly, but rather curiously, he bade her "Good day," scarce hoping for work in his poor shop from so smart and nicely dressed a lady. Evelyn felt somewhat uneasy at the old man's harmless aspect.

"This bird," she began rather timidly; "is it yours?"

The cobbler looked at the cage with a smile.

"Yes, yes, miss, my bird sure enough; and a fine bird, too; not a better bird in all N—, miss." He rubbed his hands and smiled genially. Evelyn was silent as he continued, half to himself, as old men do:

"Four years it is I've had him; four years, and scarce a day off his song. It was my boy's, my Dick's youngest that's gone for a sailor; it seems only yesterday he came in just as it might have been you, miss, today, with the bird in his hand, and says he—

"But beggin' your pardon; you was sayin'—"

"What will you take for the bird?" she asked, not feeling quite so sure of her cause, now she had actually plunged into the battle.

"Wouldn't sell him, miss; wouldn't take a sovereign for him, not if I was starvin'."

Evelyn took out her purse and counted its contents—two and sevenpence halfpenny. She drew out two shillings, saying in firm and superior tones: "Two shillings, not a penny more."

The old man looked at her kindly, and explained gently, as if to a child (it was really very irritating):

"No, miss, I don't want to sell him. I was sayin', you see, it was my lad gave me the little bird before he went to sea. No, I'm not likely to part with him for that, dearie," indicating the coin with smiling contempt. "Ay, and him all the chick or child I've got left since Dick died. 'Minds me o' my lad when I hear him sing so bright; often when I'm feeling lonesome and low-spirited he'll chime in so cheery, and set me thinkin' how my boy's comin' soon—eh, dear! eh, dear! No, you can't have him; but never mind, never mind." He nodded kindly, as if to comfort her in her disappointment.

Evelyn's patience could stand it no longer.

"Do you suppose I want to keep the poor bird?" she broke forth. "I want to buy it to give it back its liberty, to let it be free in the fields and the blue sky. Surely you know how very, very cruel it is to confine a creature made to soar and sing at the very gates of Heaven in a narrow cage with scarce room to turn!"

This was delivered fluently, being a verbatim quotation from her speech at the opening meeting of the before-mentioned society.

"Poor, miserable bird," she concluded, apostrophizing the unconscious lark.

The cobbler, simple soul, was a good deal taken aback at this convincing tirade. He attempted a defense, however:

"Nay, he's not miserable—hear to him sing. Would he sing like that if he weren't happy?"

"Yes, cried Evelyn, "he sings because he longs to be free. That is the song of despair, and not of joy."

The old fellow's face fell. Her eloquence half convinced him. Evelyn felt rather heated, and wanted, she didn't know why, to get out of the shop.

"Come," she said, again proffering a coin, "two and six, and far more than the wretched bird is worth."

"Nay," he said, sadly, "I'm not going to sell him. He's like an old friend to me, and he loves me too, that he does."

"Keep your bird, then," cried the angry reformer. "Keep it, and let it die in its miserable prison. Some day you will perhaps repent your wanton cruelty!" With which grandiloquent threat she departed, with rather more haste than dignity.

That night, getting into bed, Evelyn came to the conclusion that she had rather made a poor show.

She had also a lurking idea that her motive had not been quite so much the cause of righteousness as the pleasure of reporting progress to her new society. Her passionate words kept recurring to her mind as she lay sleepless half through the night. She wondered if little birds had their duty to do, as she did; whether, perhaps, in giving pleasure to a lonely old man's declining days, the lark might not be unconsciously doing its great Maker's bidding in the place for which He intended it. She was, she decided, overyoung to judge hastily. And, being a thoughtful and conscientious girl, she bravely resolved to go the next morning, leaving her pride to the dust, and own herself in the wrong.

About nine o'clock the next morning, walking with a red face up the narrow street, she perceived the old fellow standing at his door with the empty cage in his hand; he was gazing toward the sky, and she saw a tear trickle down his wrinkled cheek. He turned as she approached, and smiling mournfully in answer to her inquiring glance.

"Maybe you was right, miss," he said; "maybe." He passed into his shop as a sob checked his utterance.

Evelyn turned away abashed. Never in her life had she been so much ashamed of herself.—Westminster.
